

Tree Roo Rescue and Conservation Centre Ltd

We are a non-profit organisation that rescues and rehabilitates, orphaned, injured or displaced tree kangaroos.

Unfortunately an increasing number of Lumholtz tree kangaroos are being killed by dogs and hit by cars each year.

Please donate to us and the money will go directly towards treating and caring for these beautiful animals.

If you've found an injured tree kangaroo...

For those who've made mistakes in Love

We humans are not alone ! It happens in the animal kingdom as well. Those who ventured out to the wilds of Warril creek, after our fun workshop on local frog call identification, were treated to a case of mistaken identification by the frogs themselves. Two different species of frogs mating.

Autumn Gardening with Natives

The recent cool temps and moist soils from the wet weather hanging around have made it an ideal time to continue planting in your garden. We have several great varieties of small natives such as Weeping Cleistanthus, Cardwell Lily, Trailing Hibiscus & Flax Lilies. Come in for a chat and have a look around at our range of native pretties on bench 18.

Proiphys amboinensis (Cardwell Lily) has large, deeply-veined leaves, fragrant white flowers in clusters on long stems making them desirable garden plants.

Plants die back to an underground bulb during winter and should not be disturbed at this time. They are hardy, do best in well composted soil in sheltered areas of the garden with little sun, and occur naturally in rainforest and coastal areas of northern Queensland.

Dianella apodus (Flax Lily)

Blue star shaped flowers produced on long stems in spring followed by attractive edible purple berries. Clumping plant with strap like leaves. Very hardy and long-lived once established. Grows in full sun and well drained soil up to a height of 1m and a width of 2.5m. In the wild it is an occasional plant in complex grassy and rocky vine scrubs or dry eucalypt forests, although it will also do well in the upper sections of the riparian areas.
